MICKIE SAYS

NASHVILLE SARCASM.

Says the Nashville Tennessean, speaking of the Republican State Committee which recently met in Nashville:

In affairs national and international they are equally prolific of issues. They are for Washington. Taft is ignored; Roosevelt is forgotten; Lincoln disregarded. The Republican party in this state has foresworn all innovation, and will have no plank in its platform that is less than one hundred years old. It has thrown the lever into reverse and is backing its chariot into the shadows of the past. Having failed for many years to make any forward progress it now dedicates itself to the backward trail. It has abandoned the "forward looking man" and joined the backward-looking man.

Yes, planks of sturdy oak, well seasoned in the making of a nation, and not of sapling pine, bound to break. And who is Taft? He is the man who in joint row with Roosevelt, elected Wilson. And before that who was Taft? He was the father of the government by injunction so successfully used by Wilson to force the miners to yield their strike, when if let alone they might have won it.

They wanted higher wages—they needed them—but ostensibly the people were protected, and the miners, a great portion of the people, trampled upon.

If the plan of retrogression so hinted at by the Tennessean, will bring peace, prosperity and happiness to this land, let us retrograde. We cannot go further back than the beginning, and that would be preferable to a policy of poking our nose into every quarrel between nations to have it smitten. It may seem cowardice not to do so, but it is exceptionally good policy.

We as a nation are not pug-uglies, existing by pommeling, but a nation of Christians, peace-loving people who are anxious to keep our own house in order and not essay the task of cleaning house for the whole world. We would be our own masters and not the slaves of the world.

If the "forward-looking" man is the result of the policy of the last four years, let us avoid it as we would the pestilence. Let us rather look backward to the policies of the past which brought us the freedom true Americans so dearly love.

Let the Democratic slogan be, "Let us go forward," if they wish it, but the Republican slogan will be "For God and Country," and perhaps after the rabbit has chased himself to utter fatigue "going ahead," the slow-going but progressive turtle will pass him on the way, by the use of safe and sane policies.

THE LEAGUE AGAIN.

The Republicans have purposely made the league a party quarrel within the past year and definitely announce that they wish to carry it into the field during the approaching campaign. But we fear that the Republican party leaders are making a mistake when they imagine that they can recruit full strength by merely waving their tattered campaign standard, especially when such an issue as this is at stake.—Nashville Tennessean.

A "party" quarrel, eh? To our mind it is a "national" one in which the Democratic bunch which favors the league will be shown something when voting time comes. The league as an issue is hailed with delight by voters. They are going to snow under with their votes any party foolish enough to advocate an alliance with European hell. Republicans do not have to wave a "tattered campaign standard" to get results. They have a flag, the grand old Stars and Stripes, and the "recruits" are already there, where they have been all the time.

Curbing the whiskey drinkers seems to be at double cost. Revenue men tell us that taxes must come because there is no revenue from whiskey, and the anti-saloon people tell us that they must have money to push the fight against the whiskey interests. In our opinion the whiskey promoters will have a doubly hot corner in Division 2 of the next world, to pay for the trouble they have and are causing.

Teamsters get $6 per day hauling in this county. This buys them $2 value of supplies. Ten years ago, with prices normal they hauled for $3 per day, but then $3 bought that value. In other words they are now hauling for a dollar a day less than they did ten years ago. Apparently there is no danger of these men getting rich quick, unless conditions change.

If everybody would go to work lots of these high prices would be reduced during 1920. Underproduction invariably means high prices, especially when the profiteers find out a product has been underproduced.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SOUTH, STRONGHOLD OF PROHIBITION, AGAIN CALLED ON AS TORCH BEARER IN FINAL FIGHT WITH LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Seven-Day Campaign for Funds to Begin January 16, When the National Amendment Goes Into Effect—Anti-Saloon League Marshals Forces for Great Movement to Finish the Job—World Dry by 1930, is Aim.

IN the early stages of the fight for national prohibition the states of the south took the lead and have maintained it in all the trying years in which the dry forces have been locked in a death struggle with the forces behind the liquor traffic in this country.

As a section the south was the first to clear itself of the stain of the liquor traffic and has been no small factor in giving its moral and financial support in the successful battles which other sections of the country have waged against this traffic and which definitely becomes outlawed in America with the constitutional amendment that becomes operative January 16.

And now the south is called upon to take the lead in the Prohibition Enforcement Campaign under the direction of E. Y. Clarke, of Atlanta, which comes as a logical and absolutely necessary result of the enactment of prohibition laws, both state and national, and the companion measures which aim at their proper enforcement.

"Finish the Job"

"Let's enforce prohibition and finish the job," has become the slogan and the watchword of those in charge of the campaign to enforce prohibition in this country. The speed and effectiveness with which this work is done depends almost entirely upon the spirit and the extent of the co-operation of those who have made possible the results already achieved.

The placing of the prohibition laws and measures for their enforcement upon the statute books by no means finished the job. There is still a vast amount of work to be done before the liquor forces confess defeat and retire from the field.

While the saloon has been legislated out of business, it is making a determined effort to come back, and it is the purpose of the Prohibition Enforcement Campaign to see that it doesn't come back.

The Liquor Propaganda

When the Eighteenth amendment to the constitution was passed well-meaning friends of Prohibition said: "Our nation now is legally dry; the cause of prohibition has triumphed; the fight is won and we are through with it."

The intensive campaign of the liquor interests to nullify Prohibition is the answer. Their propaganda organization has been equalled only by that of the German government.

Even the most casual reader of the news of the day realizes that Prohibition has its hardest fight ahead. The liquor traffic is waging at the polls, in the courts and in the public press the most desperate and determined fight in its history.

To those who think America now is "dry," all that is necessary is a glance around you. Reports are coming daily of the death of one or more persons from drinking wood alcohol and other dangerous concoctions sold under the guise of corn whiskey, and the activities of the so-called "blind-tigers" were never so pronounced in the history of the country as at the present time.

Elihu Root Leads Wets

And this is the very condition that is sought and is being encouraged by the liquor interests. They are being advised by learned and highly paid counsel, led by Elihu Root, to use every means in their power to make Prohibition a by-word and to make conditions under Prohibition so intolerable and the violations of the law so flagrant and the lack of law enforcement so notorious that the people will become disgusted with the situation and demand a return to the licensed saloon.

It is the plan and purpose of the Prohibition Enforcement campaign, in so far as America is concerned, to acquaint the people of this country with this situation and to open their eyes and keep them open to the subtle propaganda campaign which is being waged by the liquor interests.

They are spreading the report and encouraging the belief that the Prohibition forces now will turn their attention to legislation against tobacco, tea and coffee.

No War On Tobacco

In this connection Judge Nash R. Broyles, chief justice of the Georgia Court of Appeals, says:

"The agitation as to prohibition of tobacco is camouflage to handicap the enforcement of the liquor prohibition laws. The persistent propaganda by the National Tobacco League to the effect that the Anti-Saloon League is backing an anti-tobacco campaign is entirely unfounded."

The prohibition campaign asks nothing more nor less than enforcement of the Prohibition laws already on the statute books and the enactment of further legislation to strengthen them. The campaign does not propose to interfere with individuals. It is intended largely as a campaign of education. Literature to counteract the propaganda of the wets, who are seeking to nullify the prohibition act, is being disseminated, meetings will be held, and dry candidates will be supported against the candidates of the wets for every political office from President downward.

In addition to enforcing Prohibition in this country the aim of the Anti-Saloon League is World-wide Prohibition by 1930. To accomplish this the Prohibition forces not only have to combat the liquor forces already entrenched in Europe, Mexico, South and Central America, China, Cuba and other countries, but must fight the additional influence of the American distillers who, driven from this country, are seeking footholds in other lands.

Campaign Begins Jan. 16

This great work will require a large expenditure of funds, the active campaign for which will begin January 16, when the National Prohibition Amendment goes into effect, and will continue one week.

For the purpose of carrying on this educational campaign organizations, state, county and city, are being perfected in Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Tennessee.

Judge Nash R. Broyles of Atlanta, chief justice of the Georgia Court of Appeals, is state chairman of the campaign in Georgia.

In Tennessee the state chairman is Former United States Senator W. R. Webb, one of the leading educators of the south, and head of the Webb School at Bell Buckle.

Prof. J. G. Clinkscales of Spartanburg is state chairman for South Carolina. Prof. Clinkscales is prominent in educational circles and is president of Wofford College.

L. B. Musgrove of Jasper is state chairman for Alabama. Mr. Musgrove is one of the leading men in the state and for twenty-five years has been a forceful leader for temperance.

The state chairman for Florida is H. B. Minium of Jacksonville. Mr. Minium is one of the leading bankers of the state and is president of the United Trust Company.

A. L. Watkins of Jackson, president of Millsap College, is state chairman for Mississippi.

HAD TERRIBLE SKIN DISEASE

Little Girl Improves Rapidly When Given ZIRON Iron Tonic.

Many mothers try one remedy after another, for the sufferings of their little ones, without apparently being able to find the right one. If anything seems wrong with the blood, or stomach, or if the child's system is run-down and needs strengthening, you may benefit by the experience of this Westmoreland, Tenn., mother, Mrs. John F. Angles, who writes:

"My little girl had a terrible skin disease and her stomach was in such a bad condition. Nothing helped her, so we finally started to give her Ziron."

She improved so rapidly from the first bottle, so we have given her two more. She is much better."

Don't try other remedies first! Choose Ziron from the start. It has benefited many people suffering from poor blood, general weakness, loss of appetite and other symptoms which indicate lack of iron in the blood.
